Motion to Object to Request to Produce

Comes now the former husband WILLIAM A. CABANA, pro se, respectfully objecting to Respondent's Request to Produce financial documents. In support he offers,

1. Personal financial documents and information are of the utmost privacy to a Floridian.
2. Production of personal financial information pursuant to statute violates the Petitioner's Fla., Con Article I Section 23 Right to Privacy.
3. The state lacks a compelling state interest to require the Petitioner to disclose personal financial information over 30 years after a dissolution of his marriage.
4. The state lacks a compelling state interest to require the Petitioner to disclose personal financial information when a fairly recent financial affidavit on record with this court indicates the Petitioner's financial status, i.e. he has income below the United States Department of Health and Human Services 2004 poverty income level for a single person. The financial affidavit indicates his assets and liabilities and income.

Respectfully submitted,
